

Launch programs with another user

Last Updated lunedì, 10 dicembre 2007

To launch a program with another user than the current one you can follow the below procedure.

Click on the program icon, and with the right button select the menu item Run as.. and insert name and password of the destination user.

This is useful for example to install a new program, when administrator access is required. It would be a good practice also not to use an administrator account for daily work and normal operations (this would prevent periodic system reinstallation due to damage, slow down and viruses).
