

PHP: wait for a script

Contributed by Administrator
lunedì, 08 settembre 2008
Last Updated lunedì, 08 settembre 2008

The best and fast way to insert a delay time in your PHP scrip is to call the function `sleep()`.

The command has the following syntax:

```
int sleep ( int $seconds )
```

to call with the number of seconds requested for the script to delay.

The function returns
zero on success, or false on errors.