Not everybody knows about some automatic scripts you can find on the web able to transform specific images into html and css documents; ready (or quite ready) to be published on your web space.

psd2cssonline is one of the most famous and used script converting psd images into a html web page, with css style file and a separate folder for the relative images. This site is really useful for web pages beginners as well as more experienced webmasters.
